

5:55am

What I would give
To see these gray skies yield themselves
To that golden, glowing splendor I took for granted
In the summers, when I was young
And the glory of the sun first claiming the hills in the morning
Seemed a due
Rather than a privilege

Ruksana Kabealo